

Daniel Fielding FCIPS

A graduate of University of Warwick business school (UK), Daniel is professionally qualified in procurement and is a Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Procurement and Supply.

Daniel has held a variety of procurement roles over 20 years. He started his procurement career in a private sector blue chip organisation in the UK, fulfilling a number of procurement manager and project management. As a consultant, has worked in a variety of industries including Government, Retail, Transport, Finance, IT/telecoms, and FMCG, Education and Construction.

Daniel brings his extensive 'hands-on' experience as both a practitioner and a consultant to training programs. Having delivered training across a broad range of industry sectors, Dan can facilitate discussions, works with participants at a pace that works for them and consistently receives strong feedback.

Daniel has worked with over 100 Australian and New Zealand procurement organisations and has first-hand experience of what good practice looks like.
